Parker McCumber is a proven leader who has dedicated his life to serving others, building communities, and getting results. As a Utahn with deep roots in our County, Parker understands the values and aspirations that make our community strong.

Parker's journey began right here in Utah County, growing up in Lehi and Eagle Mountain before graduating from Alta High School. At 18, he answered the call to serve his country, enlisting in the Army and spending 5 years on active duty as a Field Artillery Forward Observer. His service took him around the world—from Germany to Korea to Afghanistan—where he learned firsthand what it means to lead under pressure and make decisions that matter.

Today, Captain Parker McCumber commands Charlie Battery of the 1st Battalion, 145th Field Artillery Regiment in the Utah National Guard, where he continues to serve our state and nation with distinction. In this role, Parker leads around 100 soldiers and manages equipment and budget in excess of 25 million dollars. His military experience has taught him the discipline, strategic thinking, and unwavering commitment to mission success that our community needs in local government.

Parker's entrepreneurial spirit has created real opportunities right here in our community. He has built businesses from the ground up, created jobs, and contributed to our local economy. His success as a real estate investor and executive coach demonstrates his understanding of the economic challenges and opportunities facing families and businesses in Vineyard.

At home, Parker is a devoted husband to his wife Emmeline and proud father to three young children: Franklin (6), Amelia (almost 3), and Theodore (1). This personal stake in our community's future drives his passion for creating a safe, prosperous environment where families can thrive.

For nearly a decade, Parker has coached football, pouring his heart into developing young athletes both on and off the field. His coaching philosophy mirrors his approach to leadership: discipline, accountability, and helping others become the best versions of themselves. You might spot him running Vineyard's trails early in the morning—a testament to his belief that if you can't lead yourself through the hard things, you can't lead others.

Parker combines practical experience with serious academic credentials. He holds an MBA from Western Governors University and is completing his Doctorate in Business Administration with an emphasis in Organizational Leadership. This unique blend of real-world leadership experience and advanced study in organizational dynamics gives him the tools to tackle complex challenges facing our growing city.

Parker believes in limited government, individual liberty, fiscal responsibility, and keeping power close to the people. He understands that the best solutions often come from empowering individuals and businesses to thrive, not from expanding bureaucracy. His political philosophy centers on preserving what makes our community special while embracing smart, innovative approaches to growth and development.

From the battlefields of Afghanistan to the football fields of Utah County, from building businesses to building young lives, Parker McCumber has spent his career in service to others. Now he's ready to bring that same dedication, discipline, and proven leadership to city government.

Parker's mission is clear: to serve with integrity, empower individuals and families, and build a stronger, more prosperous future for Vineyard. With his track record of results and deep commitment to our community, Parker McCumber is the leader Vineyard needs.

Ready to lead. Ready to serve. Ready for results.
